Description :

This course focuses on helping students achieve an understanding of general concepts of Management Information Systems (MIS) and how companies use it to reach competitive advantage, reduce the cost of existing business processes and improve decision making. By the end of the course, students will be able to identify the use of MIS in business today; discuss MIS definition and categories and identify types of Business Information Systems and Enterprise Applications. This is done through business case approaches, where real business cases are introduced illustrating important topics of the course and demonstrating relevance to the current practice of MIS.
